5. Activities:

- Pre-conference seminar course taught by Dr. Tracey Derwing: September 26th, 2013.

Name of the presentation: "Introduction to Teaching Pronunciation to Second Language Learners."

Brief description: This course will outline the basics for language teachers who want to help their students with pronunciation. The fundamental concepts of intelligibility, comprehensibility and accent will be discussed. There will be opportunities to assess the needs of L2 learners of English, and practical techniques will be covered.

Tracey Derwing is a professor of TESL in the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Alberta. She has carried out extensive research on issues of second language learners' oral fluency and pronunciation, particularly the extent to which accent interferes with intelligibility. She has also studied native speaker reactions to second language-accented speech. In addition, Dr. Derwing has focused on the effects of modifications native speakers make when addressing low proficiency speakers of English. Dr. Derwing's publications appear in journals such as Language Learning, Studies in Second Language Acquisition, Applied Linguistics, and TESOL Quarterly. Dr. Derwing has served as an editor of the TESL Canada Journal and the Canadian Modern Language Review.
