Publicly endorsed by the Universidad Nacional de Mar del Plata,
Facultad de Humanidades, according to Ordenanza de Consejo Académico N. 0662,
November 30, 2012

FIRST CALL FOR PAPERS

The Universidad Nacional de Mar Del Plata, UCAECE Sede Mar del Plata, Colegio Atlántico Del Sur (CADS), and Instituto Superior IDRA call for the III Phonetics and Phonology International Conference to be held in Mar del Plata, Argentina, on September 26th-28th, 2013.

1- Objectives:

- a) To further the exchange of ideas about approaches to and experiences in the field of phonetics and phonology, both in the teaching of first and second / foreign languages, which was encouraged by the First and Second Phonetics and Phonology International Conference held at Universidad Nacional de Córdoba, Argentina.
- b) To promote reflection on and analysis of the issues pertaining to the academic areas of phonetic and phonology.
- c) To encourage research into the field of phonetics and phonology.
- d) To implement actions that will better the production and expand on the knowledge of the field of phonetics and phonology.

2- Addressees:

- Teachers, college professors, researchers and students who are interested in the influence of phonetics and phonology, both in the first and second / foreign language studies.

3- Activities:

- Pre-conference seminar course taught by Dr. Tracey Derwing: September 26th, 2013.

Name of the presentation: "Introduction to Teaching Pronunciation to Second Language Learners."

Brief description: This course will outline the basics for language teachers who want to help their students with pronunciation. The fundamental concepts of intelligibility, comprehensibility and accent will be discussed. There will be opportunities to assess the needs of L2 learners of English, and practical techniques will be covered.

Tracey Derwing is a professor of TESL in the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Alberta. She has carried out extensive research on issues of second language learners' oral fluency and pronunciation, particularly the extent to which accent interferes with intelligibility. She has also studied native speaker reactions to second language-accented speech. In addition, Dr. Derwing has focused on the effects of modifications native speakers make when addressing low proficiency speakers of English. Dr. Derwing's publications appear in journals such as Language Learning, Studies in Second Language Acquisition, Applied Linguistics, and TESOL Quarterly. Dr. Derwing has served as an editor of the TESL Canada Journal and the Canadian Modern Language Review. (For more information visit:
